Perfect children's game! Loads of charm and humour, easy to play, looks just like the series! Loved watching my kids running around the Heeler house. Defo recommend this!

Good but buggy
I was walking around when bingo shoved a plant pot in me, sending me to some sort of shadow realm or backroom, forever tainting my soul and banishing me to the purgatory of hell. Great voice actors though. A must have!

Short of content

Nice easy kids game. Did co-op with my 4yo. Took about 90mins to complete. Not much to do beyond that besides a few mini games.

Console

Bit short off the mark

Glitches, freezing floating in mid air characters to the point a game restart is required. Kids game,which they did partially enjoy having great love for the series (myself incl.). It was just too short and felt unfinished/ untested before release. Another what appears to be rushed mess that's in need of patches from the devs. Lets hope its not a cash grab & we get the updates it deserves!

I love the idea, hate the game. It's glitch, laggy and the animations are straight up lazy. No love or care went into this and you can tell. £30 for something that is low quality and feels unfinished. Only worth a go if you already have gamepass

Bluey on a budget

You would think with the obscene amount of money they have made from Bluey merch they could make a decent high budget video game adaptation.....but no. This feels rushed and put together by a few people over a weekend.Its janky, and possibly the worst thing about the game is the bizarre sound levels of the voice acting, some lines are really loud and some are really quiet, sometimes both within the same sentence.....it all feels very soulless and doesn't capture a single gram of the magic of the TV show.

I wish it was good.

Bluey is such a good show but this game did NOT do it justice, the voices sounds weird like as if thye are ai and they clearly just pasted some pngs of the characters in.
